Dani Sylvia is a singer / songwriter who manages to capture how unreasonably awful it is sometimes to be who we are, without making you want to throw things at the radio. Her voice is a soulful and resonating sound of raw heartbreak, hope and 'generation now'. She is a poignant artist of true individualism and awkward realism that everyone can relate to. Dani won 'Best Songwriter' at The Unsigned Music Awards 2016 and has since been 'Featured Artist' on 'BBC Introducing London' with her debut single Omniscient, which was also 'Track of the Week' on BBC Sussex/Surrey. The single then received spins on Radio 2 by Alex Lester. As well as headlining her own shows at venues such as Scala, The O2 Academy Islington and The Bedford, she also toured the UK supporting The Feeling with her debut EP 'Monologues'. Dani has worked with artists such as Paloma Faith, Pixie Lott, Sigma and Labrinth with Urban Voices Collective.

CATHARSIX

Her latest project is a series of EPs which will be released in the second week of every month for the next six months (September 2018 - February 2019). The project is called 'Catharsix' and each EP will explore a different theme ranging from love and all its perils, sexual rejection and shame, all the way to joy, feeling worthy and the madness of confronting an existential crisis with lots of other themes in between. Each EP somehow manages to reach down your throat, dig its nails into your heart and pull it out slowly through your mouth - yet somehow you don't feel despairingly about it. You can keep up to date with 'Catharsix' on Spotify.
